

November is Native American Heritage Month

Take the Course "Working Effectively With Tribal Governments" to commemorate this special month!

Join the USDA in its initiative with the DOD, DOI and DOE to get this training done during this month.

This training curriculum gives federal employees some basic skills and knowledge you can use to work more effectively with tribal governments. You will develop an understanding and awareness of tribal issues and concerns. Importantly, learn how the unique status of Indian tribes and their historical relationship with the federal government affects government programs, responsibilities, and initiatives.

Take the course and learn about the integral role of federal Native American Indian policy in all aspects of working with tribal governments.
